

Buses caught in a bottleneck

- Marshals at two gates directed buses on when they could turn into the interchange, with a staff member giving instructions on how many buses could be let in.
- In some cases, likely when the interchange was too crowded, buses were stopped from turning in, even when the traffic light was in their favour.

